Text

Yt may please your Lordships emong the number of the la{te}* discharged here yt happened the Captein this bearer to bee one, whose former good carriage and forward {...}* in every occasion of service wherein he hath bene imploy{ed} hath both during my gouernement here & likewise before (as5 is knowen to the rest of the Councell here) so well ap proved yt self, as being now to repaire ouer into England I could not lett him passe without my Wittnessing the same vnto your Lordships beseeching you according to his well deserving to yield him such good favour & Countenance in such reasonable requestes as he shall occasion to sollicit as that both the gentleman may bee thereby incoraged to con-tynue his well doing, and my self also haue occasion to bee thanckfull to your Lordships in his behalf. Euen so leaving him to your Lordships good regard, I humbly take leave. 10 Dublin the xxvijth of May. 1582./ 15

Your good Lordships assured to Commaund,

Arthur Grey

¶ Note on hands The address and main text of the letter, including the subscription, are in Spenser's characteristic secretary hand. The signature is Grey's own, and the endorsement, probably added when the letter was filed in London, is in a later hand. The letter is slightly damaged along the right-hand margin.

* 1 la{te} Here, as in several succeeding lines, damage to the right side of the manuscript has cut into the text. In this instance, the missing letters are obvious from the sense of the passage.

¶ * 3 {...} One or two letters (three minim strokes) are visible at the end of this line, but it is unclear whether the word begins with 'm', 'ni', or 'in'.
